If we had to pick one word to describe this record, it would be "thick." Strategy takes off into deep Detroit-influenced house territory on Fields of May, and the result is a foggy, weatherbeaten, hypnotic and incredibly heavy title track. Strategy's DSP trickery is still in evidence, but takes a backseat here to a much more organic sound. A serious late-night burner which fans of Moodymann or The Mole ought to dig. Will keep you warm this winter.

Secondo turns in a remix which ups the energy level a bit, taking it into a territory which we feel comfortable calling "tech-house." A friendly sound but with serious tension for the floor.

Last on the flip is the wonderful VCoda, a spiky and thoroughly gorgeous experiment in ambient techno/dub. Headphones? Check. Spliff? Check.
